

Your Voice – Exposing Corruption Together

It is my hope that others who have been wrongfully convicted or know someone who has can benefit from this site. Now that social media has been able to shed much light on police and court corruption, it is time that the people of this great nation work together and help each other to continue exposing the police and court corruption that has been hidden throughout the decades.

Who reading this, feels safe and protected when looking in their rearview mirror and seeing a police car behind them? Why is anxiety the conditioned response in this situation?

Law enforcement has reversed the roles, from 'to serve and protect' to 'punish and imprison' and made the American citizen live in fear of those they have given the public trust over to. This fear is justified, as anyone who has been falsely accused of a crime knows. The police and prosecutors have been able to do and get away with whatever it takes to gain a false conviction, while they hide behind immunity. There is little to no accountability for their actions and there is no one to protect the American people from them. As The National Registry of Exonerations makes clear, this problem is systemic.

In the near future it is my hope to have a section where others, who have been victimized by the police and courts, can post their stories. However, my family nor I have the funding to do so. For now, at least until I am released or someone with time and financial backing can help, this site will have to be limited to cases that involve the following individuals who have contributed to my wrongful conviction:

Trial attorney (ex-prosecutor) Dirk L. Manoukian

Prosecutor Steven James Moawad (currently working for the state bar)

Judge John W. Kennedy

Judge Laural Brady

Walnut Creek Police Department

Detective Brian McColgin

Detective Tracie Reese

Detective Bruce Jower

Contra Costa Sheriff - blood splatter expert witness – Nichole Aronsen

Dr. Deborah Davis – Qualified expert on eye witness identification (Charges several thousand dollars for expert opinion that the judge will not allow the jury to hear.)

If you, or anyone you know, has had any of these individuals or organizations involved in your case and you have evidence of their misconduct, please submit your information and story with supporting evidence, so that we can work together in exposing their misconduct and take the steps necessary to overturn convictions that were based on false and/or fabricated evidence. In coming together and exposing the corruptions which led to the injustices levied against us and our loved ones, we can perform our civil service of justice and take steps to repair a broken system.

Thank you,

Nathan Medina
